PHILADELPHIA (N. L.), 4 BROOKLYN 0.

Thislman pitched his first championship game for the Brooklyns yesterday and held the Philadelphias down to six hits, struck out five of them and gave never a base on balls. But he lost his game. The reason was twofold. The Brooklyns could not make their hits at opportune times, while the Quakers could and did. The fielding was good, in spite of the errors. The day's inventory of sterling performances in the field included five double plays.

The Philadelphias scored twice in the seventh inning on a hit by Keister, an out, Plood's error on Brashear's grounder and Hulswitt's single. Wolverton hit safely in the eighth inning, and Barry smashed a liner to left. Sheckard tried for all he knew to head off the flying ball, but could not reach it, and it rolled on and on until Barry had crossed the plate, with Wolverton scoring ahead of him.

Fine base-running was done by Sheckard, He dashed around the paths like a scared deer, and stole three bases; but his fleetness of foot went for naught, and a necklace of saros was the best the Brooklyns got out of the game. PITTEBURG, 8: ST. LOUIS (N. L.), 7.

In view of the recent accidents at Aqueduct the efficials of the Queens County Jockey Club decided yesterday to make a number of improvements. Before the fall meeting the entire track will be widened, especially on the far turn, the home stretch to be made 100 feet from rail to rail. Fifty acres of land just beyond the head of the stretch
have been purchased, and if there is room
enough a straightsway chute of five furiongs will be constructed, to be used chiefly for the two-year-old events. President Reilly is anxious to make the Aqueduct track compare favorably with the other courses in the Metrofavorably with the other courses in the Metro-politan circuit, and says that when racins is resumed there next fall there will be no cause for complaint. It is a matter of record that there have been more falls and more serious accidents at Aqueduct than at any

Owing to the large number of horses at the Sheepehead Bay track Supt. Frank T. Clarke has devised plans for a new galloping course either haif a mile or sir furions in length to be laid out near the head of the Futurity starting post. The plans will be submitted to the board of directors of the Coney Island Jockey Club to be acted upon next Wednesday.

Redfern was originally engaged to ride Ocean Dream in the last race yesterday, but owing to the injuries received by him on Thursday Minder was engaged, but as Winder was severely shaken up in the fall from Tensgra he could not ride the Henry of Navarre filly, so Johnny Daly got the mount, the filly winning just the same. Daly, by the way, also rode Petra II, to victory and divided the honors of the day with Shaw, who handled Grand Opera and Knobhampton. Some of the bookmakers at Aqueduct are laying prices on the races for the American and National League basebell championships. One of them yesterday laid 6 to against Pitsburg to win the national pennant. Udorn will probably ride Alex Shields's Andy Williams in the Excessior Handicap, the colt taking up five pounds everweight, an Odom cannet get below ito pounds.

The Woodhaven Stakes, the gross value of which yesterday was $1,310, was first won by Vertigo in 1888. After that the winners were Freimgauysen, Sourry, Elsle L. and Hedge. Clorita, owned by L. Waterbury, who will run his horses this year in the name of the Pleasance stable, was claimed out of the first race by W. B. placed in position, and it is now expected that all three boats, the Columbia, Constitution and Reliance, will be here within ten days. The can buoy to be used by the new boat, Reliance, has been set by the United States Lighthouse Board back of the torpedo station in the outer harbor, as the management of the yacht did not care to run any chances in bringing the Reliance inside the cove. The mooring for the Columbia is a spar buoy set well in Brenton's Cove, off the summer residence of E. D. Morgan, who is her manager. The Constitution's mooring, also in the cove, has been down some time.

It is learned that the Columbia will arrive here on Sunday, as word was received tonight saying that she was preparing to leave for Newport.
